

A Very Millennial Christmas

Prepared by KCCNJ.com

Characters:

Mia: A millennial in her late 20s

Alex: Mia's partner, also a millennial

Grandma: Mia's grandmother, in her 70s

Santa: A confused, traditional Santa Claus

Scene 1: The Living Room

Mia and Alex are decorating their Christmas tree while taking selfies.

Mia: (holding up her phone) Alex, move the avocado ornament a little to the left. It's not getting enough likes on Instagram!

Alex: (adjusting the ornament) How's this? Should I add a filter to make it look more #aesthetic?

Mia: Perfect! Now let's hang the USB cord garland. It really captures our digital lifestyle.

Grandma enters, looking confused

Grandma: What happened to the tinsel and candy canes?

Alex: Oh Grandma, those are so last century. We're doing a minimalist, tech-inspired tree this year.

Grandma: (sighs) Back in my day, Christmas wasn't about hashtags and followers.

Mia: (gasps) You're right, Grandma! We forgot to create a hashtag for our tree! How about #AvocadoChristmasVibes?

Scene 2: Christmas Morning

Mia and Alex are sitting on the floor, surrounded by wrapped gifts. They're both on their phones.

Alex: Okay, Mia, let's open our presents, but remember to pause for unboxing videos!

Mia: (excitedly) I can't wait to see what ethical, sustainable, locally-sourced gifts we got each other!

They open gifts, revealing items like a reusable metal straw set, a succulent in a recycled jar, and a gift card for a meditation app

Alex: (holding up the metal straws) Yes! Now we can save the turtles while sipping our oat milk lattes!

Mia: (hugging the succulent) I'll name it Kale and feature it on my plant Instagram account!

Santa enters, looking bewildered

Santa: Ho ho... wait, what's going on here? Where are the toys and candy?

Mia: (excitedly) Santa! We left you some avocado toast and cold brew by the fireplace. Did you like it?

Santa: (patting his stomach) Well, it was... different. But where's your Christmas spirit?

Alex: It's right here on our phones, Santa! We've been spreading joy through our social media all morning.

Santa: (shaking his head) I think I need to update the naughty or nice algorithm...

Scene 3: Christmas Dinner

The table is set with various trendy foods. Mia and Alex are taking pictures of the spread.

Mia: Our deconstructed turkey bowl is going to break the internet!

Alex: And don't forget the quinoa stuffing and kale chips. It's a superfood Christmas!

Grandma: (looking at the table) Where's the roast turkey? The mashed potatoes?

Mia: Oh Grandma, we're having an Instagram-worthy, plant-based feast this year.

Alex: Yeah, it's all locally sourced and gluten-free. Want some cauliflower rice?

Grandma: (sighs) I miss real Christmas dinner.

Mia: (gasps) We forgot to check in on Yelp! Quick, Alex, give our home-cooked meal five stars!

Santa re-enters, looking hungry

Santa: I thought I smelled cookies...

Alex: Sorry, Santa. We have some raw vegan energy balls instead. They're great for your gut health!

Santa: (to himself) I'm putting coal in my own stocking this year...

Mia, Alex, Grandma, and Santa all look at the audience and shrug

All together: Merry Millennial Christmas to all, and to all a good filter!
