New Year's Resolution mad lib

My [Adjective] New Year's Resolution

This year, I, [Your Name], solemnly swear to become more [Adjective].

I will [Verb] at least [Number] times a week and cut back on eating [Plural Noun].

To improve my mind, I'll read one [Adjective] book every [Time Period] and learn to play the [Musical Instrument].

I promise to spend less time [Verb ending in -ing] and more time [Verb ending in -ing] with my [Adjective] [Plural Noun].

By December 31st, I'll be the most [Adjective] person in [Place]!

Countdown to Midnight mad lib for New Year's Eve

The [Adjective] Countdown to Midnight

As the clock neared midnight on New Year's Eve, the [Adjective] party was in full swing.

[Name] was wearing a [Color] hat and waving a [Noun] excitedly.

At 11:55 PM, everyone gathered around the [Adjective] television to watch the ball [Verb] in Times Square.

[Name] shouted, "[Exclamation]! It's almost time!" The host on TV began the countdown: "[Number], [Number], [Number]..."

The crowd joined in, [Verb ending in -ing] louder with each second. "[Number], [Number]..." "THREE!" yelled [Name], spilling their [Beverage]. "TWO!" the partygoers [Verb, past tense] in unison. "ONE!"

As the clock struck midnight, everyone [Verb, past tense] and shouted, "Happy New [Noun]!" Confetti [Verb, past tense] through the air, and the room filled with the sound of [Plural Noun] and laughter.

[Name] turned to their [Adjective] friend and said, "This is going to be the most [Adjective] year ever!"

First Day of the Year mad lib

My [Adjective] New Year's Day

I woke up on January 1st feeling [Adjective].

The [Noun] was shining through my window, and I could hear [Plural Noun] [Verb ending in -ing] outside.

For breakfast, I had a plate of [Adjective] [Plural Noun] with a side of [Noun]. It was the most [Adjective] meal I've ever tasted!

To start the year off right, I decided to [Verb] for [Number] minutes. Afterwards, I felt so [Adjective] that I could [Verb] a [Noun]!

Later, I called my [Adjective] friend [Name] to wish them a Happy New Year.

We made plans to [Verb] together next week.

Before bed, I wrote in my journal: "This year, I'm going to [Verb] more and worry about [Plural Noun] less.

It's going to be a/an [Adjective] year!"

New Year's Party mad lib

The [Adjective] New Year's Bash

Last night, I attended the most [Adjective] New Year's party at [Name]'s house.

I arrived wearing my favorite [Color] [Article of Clothing] and carrying a [Noun] as a gift for the host.

The moment I walked in, I saw [Number] people [Verb ending in -ing] to "[Song Title]" by [Musical Artist].

The room was decorated with [Adjective] balloons and [Plural Noun] hanging from the ceiling.

For dinner, we had [Adjective] [Type of Food] with a side of [Vegetable].

[Name] accidentally [Verb, past tense] into the punch bowl, which made everyone [Verb].

At 11:59 PM, we all gathered around the [Adjective] TV to watch the ball drop.

We counted down: "[Number], [Number], [Number]..." When the clock struck midnight, everyone shouted "[Exclamation]!" and started [Verb ending in -ing].

I kissed a [Noun] for good luck and made a resolution to [Verb] more in the new year. It was truly a/an [Adjective] way to ring in [Year]!

Welcoming the New Year

A [Adjective] Welcome to the New Year

As the clock struck midnight, I [Verb, past tense] out of my [Noun] and rushed to the [Place].

The sky was filled with [Adjective] fireworks, painting the night with bursts of [Color] and [Color].

I took a deep breath and shouted, "[Exclamation]! Happy New Year!"

My voice echoed through the [Adjective] night air.

To welcome in the next 365 days of [Adjective] possibilities, I decided to perform a special ritual.

First, I [Verb, past tense] three times in a circle. Then, I tossed a handful of [Plural Noun] into the air for good luck.

Looking up at the [Adjective] stars, I made a wish for the coming year: "May this year bring more [Noun] and less [Noun]."

As I headed back inside, I felt [Adjective] and ready to [Verb] my way into the best year yet!

New Year's Tradition mad lib

Our [Adjective] Family Tradition

Every New Year's Eve, my [Adjective] family follows a special tradition. At exactly [Number] minutes before midnight, we all gather in the [Room of the House].

First, Grandma [Verb, present tense] a [Adjective] [Noun] for good luck. Then, we each eat twelve [Plural Noun], one for each month of the coming year.

Next, Uncle [Name] leads us in [Verb ending in -ing] around the [Noun] while chanting, "[Silly Phrase]!" three times.

At the stroke of midnight, we all [Verb] and shout, "[Exclamation]!" Then, we open the [Adjective] door and [Verb] out all the bad luck from the previous year.

Finally, we toast with glasses of [Beverage] and make our New Year's resolutions. This year, I resolve to [Verb] more and [Verb] less.

It may sound [Adjective], but we believe this tradition brings us [Noun] and [Noun] for the year ahead!

New Year, New Me mad lib

New Year, New [Adjective] Me!

This year, I'm determined to become a/an [Adjective] version of myself.

No more [Verb ending in -ing] on the couch all day!

First, I'm going to learn how to [Verb]. I've always wanted to be an expert [Noun]-maker, and this is my year to shine!

Next, I'll focus on my [Body Part].

I plan to [Verb] for [Number] minutes every day to make it more [Adjective].

I'm also going to expand my mind by reading [Number] books about [Plural Noun] and taking a class on [Adjective] [Noun]-ology at the local community center.

To improve my diet, I'll eat more [Plural Noun] and less [Food]. I might even try that new [Adjective] juice cleanse everyone's talking about.

Watch out, world!

By December, I'll be so [Adjective] that my friends will say, "[Exclamation]! Is that really [Your Name]?"

This is the year of the new, [Adjective] me!
